Brief Information of the Event: -

Under the guidance of Dr. Amarish Padma, a captivating session titled "Not Everyone is Your Customer" was conducted, featuring the dynamic entrepreneur, Ms. Padma Bhagavatula. Hosted by Miss. Akshata Swamy, a 2nd-year MBA student, the session aimed to familiarize students with Miss Padma's entrepreneurial journey and provide valuable insights into the world of bespoke fashion and styling.

Ms. Padma, the esteemed Founder and Creative Head of MOUKTIKA Style and Design Studio, guided participants through a comprehensive session titled "Journey from Ideation to Progress." The discourse covered critical aspects of entrepreneurial growth and strategic planning, providing valuable insights to aspiring entrepreneurs.

Ms. Padma emphasized the transformative power of innovation, highlighting the significance of moving from zero to one in the entrepreneurial journey. She delved into the future of progress, emphasizing the need for original ideas and groundbreaking solutions.

The session explored the distinctions between horizontal and vertical progress. Miss Padma discussed the importance of diversification (horizontal progress) and specialization (vertical progress) in building a robust and sustainable business model.

The entrepreneurial journey involves setting clear goals and addressing specific needs in the market. Miss Padma outlined her approach, focusing on the customization of Western wear for individuals aged 35 to 50 and creating a bio-market as innovative solutions to meet unique customer demands.

Ms. Padma challenged the notion that small ventures cannot achieve prominence. She emphasized the art of building a monopoly within a niche market, illustrating how even small enterprises can thrive and dominate within their specialized domains.

Identifying the right target customer is a crucial aspect of entrepreneurial success. Miss Padma cautioned against thinking too broadly into the target market and attempting to please everyone. She revealed the key secret: understanding who your customer is, breaking them down by demographics, and tailoring solutions accordingly.

Miss Padma shared insights on winning over the target customer by scaling solutions effectively. She emphasized the importance of showcasing innovative offerings, stating that many times, customers may not know what they want until presented with a compelling solution.

The session with Miss Padma provided a holistic understanding of the entrepreneurial journey, from ideation to progress. Her practical insights, drawn from her own experiences, inspired participants to approach entrepreneurship strategically and creatively. The session was wrapped up by Ms. Rutuja Pawar with vote of thanks.
